

Yellow Rain

By Ellie Davis

She wore yellow rain boots to mock the rain,
So even when the clouds covered the sunshine she could see it's star-like hue.

She wore yellow on rainy days to tease negativity,
So she could dance with the thunder,
Hear it's horrible crash,
And feel the flowers begin to bloom at her feet.

She loved flowers;
They remind her of joy,
They taught her to smile.

She splashed in puddles,
Stood in the middle of a flood,
And smiled—
With her yellow boots.
